Construction Managers take the designer’s vision and make it a reality. With one of the highest job placement rates and starting salaries of any major, a degree in Construction Management is a great choice for young women who enjoy teamwork, solving tangible problems, critical thinking, and creating the world around them.

In this institute, young women will develop confidence in their abilities and gain an understanding of their opportunities in construction management through field trips, discussions, and hands-on activities.

Institute Info:
- Must be between 15 and 18 years old at time of Institute
- Fee: $25 (over $1000 value!)
  Fee waived for Alliance Partner participants
- Stay 4 nights in residence halls with college student mentors
- Explore career opportunities in the construction industry
- Tour a local construction site
- Build your own small project to take home
- Meet successful women in the construction industry

Apply online by March 9th
Check out photos and testimonials from last year’s camp at cm.colostate.edu